

I already told you about the questions of my friend and today I would like to answer the first one. He asked me about love at first sight.

I believe in love at first sight. It can happen that you see someone or something and you cannot stop yourself from falling in love. You don't even know why and there is no reason for this love, it is just there. There is no reason to love. I always talk about love without reasons or without condition. Love is there, it is in you anyway and when you see something and you like it, then love starts flowing. I am sure that everybody has had this kind of experience in his life. It could be a place, a person or a thing with which you fall in love. I believe in love at first sight. It happens because you have love inside you and something triggers it, it starts to flow and you fall in love.

From my personal experience I can say that you can fall in love even before the first sight, I even found myself falling in love only by imagination.
